

Every person dreams of establishing an aspect that offers value and significance in his/her life. Personally, I view the world to have a lot of chances and, I have realized that the resolve of my life emanates from gaining skills that will be of great use to the community. Indeed, I recall that during my time as a kid, I have continuously been captivated by constantly getting to know about new things that have the potential to be of great benefit to the society. In addition, my life encounters have improved my life and primed me for the future.

Since I was a child, I have always wanted to study criminology as I was keen in having a better understanding of the causes and consequences of crime while at the same time exploring the impacts of crime in our society. Indeed, the functioning of human mind has always intrigued me and I am looking forward to have a better understanding of why some people do not mind taking part in criminal activities while majority of people are always cautious that they do not get involved in criminal activities.

The fervent aspiration I possess for analyzing and comprehending people's behavior and logic has been obvious since my early adolescence. What interest me most are the aspects of the criminals that trigger my sub-conscience into desiring knowledge of how and why criminals function. The path upon which I have embarked since leaving secondary education has been an enlightening one. Overcoming my own personal traumas in the past decade has enabled me to evolve into a strong and empathetic individual. My years of interacting with people from different background as well as my personal experience with youth offending have led to profound moral reflection over all aspects of my life. I feel I am now so detached from what was once my life and the ordeals that came with it, that I can fully appreciate my strength of character. It is this journey through life that has enabled me to have an open-minded and analytical approach to all I aim to achieve within my life, on both a personal and academic level. I am confident in my ability to accomplish all my goals and aspirations which will continually change and develop throughout the process of life.

Finally, my academic background and past experience have honed me to develop a huge interest in the field of criminology. I am fully convinced that this program will move me closer to the path of finding a bigger meaning of my life. I am positive now and set to pursue this program as it is just what I need to move to the next level. The program perfectly fits my academic and professional objectives. It's academic focus and status provides an excellent environment that promises to enrich my growth, knowledge, and skills effectively and assures enormous potential for future excellence in my career. For these reasons, I believe that joining your institution promises immense value and benefit for my academic and professional interests.

I remain positive that you will give me the privilege to join your fine institution.
